

HSIANG-YUN CHEN

Intentional Identity and Coordination

The concept of intentional identity has aroused considerable interests since Geach (1967). I argue, however, that the real import of intentional identity is still not duly appreciated. Drawing on three sets of close-knit data – intersubjective and intrasubjective intentional identity, along with cross-speaker anaphora, I submit coordination as the key to its proper understanding and propose a set of success conditions thereof.

Keywords:

anaphora, attitude ascription, externalism, intentional identity

Hsiang-Yun Chen

Academia Sinica

hsiangyun@gmail.com